5. How long will my data be stored?

Stakeholder data will be stored as long as necessary for the purpose for which the data is collected and processed. To determine the data retention period at stake, Redevco uses the following criteria:

- Redevco complies with legal requirements imposed on Redevco under applicable law to record and store data for a certain minimum period, e.g. financial data for tax purposes.
- Redevco takes data retention periods, as suggested by local regulators, into account. This means – unless the law requires such data to be stored for a longer period – that stakeholder data will be stored in most cases no longer than two years after the end of the transaction.
- Job applicants' data will be stored four weeks after the end of the application period, unless applicants consented to let their data be stored for certain purposes up until one year.

6. Which rights do I have regarding my stakeholder data Redevco processes?

You have the right to request Redevco to have access to your data. In certain circumstances, you have a right to rectify or delete your data, to block the data processing (e.g. if the data processing is no longer necessary for Redevco's purposes), to object to the data processing (e.g. with regards to direct marketing and if you no longer wish to receive any direct marketing information from Redevco) and to invoke your right to data portability (e.g. if our data processing is based on your consent). You can invoke your rights by contacting Redevco's Compliance Officer: grc@redevco.com.

If you feel we have not appropriately dealt with your complaint, you may also submit a complaint at a local data protection authority.

7. Who can I contact about my data?

If you have a question or would like to submit a complaint with regards to the collection and processing of your data by Redevco, you can contact Redevco's Compliance Officer: grc@redevco.com.
